The scholarships offered at the foundation are competitive. A good deal of time is required to write essays, gather activity information, and coordinate letters of recommendation. We want you to be successful and we hope that the tips in this guide will help you.

Achieving a goal is quite rewarding. But you will never reach a goal if you never start. The quicker you start this process the better you will feel when it is completed. Keep persevering. If you give up too soon, you could be throwing away something wonderful. You may not always succeed on the first try. Just because you don't succeed the first go around, don't give up. GETTING STARTED

The Community Foundation operates a competitive community scholarship program from early December to mid-February.

All scholarship applications are available online. Applicants must create a username and password to apply. Once registered, students will be able to keep track of their information for the entire scholarship process from application to award in the online account.

To get started, you will complete a common that will match you to the scholarships or which you qualify for. After completing the common application, you will be directed to your dashboard. The scholarships you are eligible to apply for will appear on your dashboard, along with the follow ups required to submit your application.

These follow ups may include additional essays, letters of recommendation and short answer questions. It will show you the applications the system automatically submitted on your behalf. The scholarship application is divided the following sections:

- Biographical Information
- Academic Information
- Qualification Questions
- School Related Extracurricular Activities
- Non-School Community/Volunteer Experience
- Work Experience
- Essays
- Some applications will require Financial Information and/or letter of recommendations

The scholarship software requires each section to be completed before submitting the application.

STAND OUT

You have one chance to make a first impression, so it is critical that you have given your application some thought. Here is an opportunity to boast about your accomplishments! What will make you stand out from all of the other applicants? What will get the reviewers attention?

Start early

Waiting until the last minute to start you application can be a costly mistake. The application will require external uploads from people like your guidance counselor and references, and if they don't complete those requests before the deadline your application could be disqualified. Since it takes more than just your effort to complete the application, be respectful of other people's time.

Save your work offline

Once you preview your application, work offline or in a document that you can keep safe on your computer or take home. Reusing scholarship information like essays and references are a great idea, but once the scholarship cycle is over, you won't be able to access your application again. Be sure to keep your work where you can access it on your own especially if you are working on a public computer (like at school or the library). If you work offline, it's easier to proofread your work and then copy and paste information into the application.

Review your application

Review. Review. And then Review again. Before you submit your application, ask a friend or a family member to read through your answers. Someone else is more likely to catch any errors even on simple answers like your address or phone number. Proofreading is essential! Don't just rely on spell check or grammar check.

Questions?

If you have any questions during your application, you should first consult with your Guidance Counselor, then email lscherck@lccf.net.

Qualification Questions:

Questions unique to scholarships so that the system can match to you scholarships you may qualify for.

Financial Need:

Some scholarships require Financial Need information. Those that do, require that you attach a PDF copy of your FAFSA Student Aid Report. You will be asked to provide your EFC according to your FAFSA. EFC stands for Expected Family Contribution.

The Community Foundation Community Scholarships can be used for any cost associated with attending school— tuition, room and board, fees, etc. However, all scholarship payments are sent directly to the accredited university/college of the recipient. Keep in mind scholarship funds used for room and board may be considered income and subject to IRS taxes. 21st Century Scholars may apply.

Letter of Recommendation:

A few scholarships require a Letter of Recommendation.

Before sending a request for letter of recommendation, ask directly whether the person is willing to provide your letter of recommendation.

Be respectful of other people's time. Don't wait until the last minute to send a request; give your reference enough time to draft a thoughtful and considerate recommendation.

You should review your application occasionally to check the status of the letter of recommendation. If the request is complete, it means that the recommendation has been completed by the reference. If the request is Pending, it means that the recommendation is not complete. If the request is not complete by the deadline, then the application will not be considered.

What is a Letter of Recommendation?

A letter of recommendation should speak to your activities, achievements, academics, and or personal leadership qualities that are not otherwise mentioned in your application. It can be written by a teacher, mentor, coach, or someone else in your life that can provide a strong endorsement to why the scholarship committee should invest in your education. The letter should not be from someone related to you.

SCHOLARSHIP ESSAYS

Most scholarships require an essay. The additional essay requirement, if any, will be available in the applicant's dashboard after the common application has been submitted.

Scholarship essays are an important part of the application and scoring process. The essays are very helpful to the selection committee as a way to get to know you better, and to further prove your eligibility for the award. Not everyone is a gifted writer, and you don't have to be to receive a scholarship award. Think about the question and how it best relates to you, then compose a thoughtful and honest essay that directly answers the question.

Essay Tips

If you haven't been working offline in a document on your computer so far, be sure to do so for your essays. Consider these tips as you work on this section of your application:

- Plan in far in advance. If you wait until the last minute to write your essay the quality is likely to suffer.
- Think about the scholarship you are writing an essay for. What makes you the ideal candidate for that scholarship? As you begin working on the essays, thoughtfully consider what the essay question is asking. Make sure to read all directions first before answering the question.
- Develop an outline about what you plan to discuss. Create a Strong introduction, body with main points that flow in a logical order and stay away from long, boring conclusions.
- Use your voice and be honest. Help the committee feel like they can get to know you. Show emotions. Showing your emotions can help the reader see you as a person. Use real life examples, try to keep a positive tone.
- Tastefully show case your strengths, passions, and personality. Your GPA and extracurriculars are well-documented elsewhere. Essays are your opportunity to go in-depth on one or two of your accomplishments.
- Watch your word choice. Big words don't impress a scholarship committee. They're more concerned with content, spelling and grammar than word choice. This includes eliminating any buzzwords or slang.
- Use complete sentences and make use of the word count. If a question has a word limit of 500 words, then it is unlikely the response can address the prompt in only 100 words.
- PROOFREAD – ask a friend, teacher, parent, anyone! Rewrite and revise as needed. Make sure your essay is free of any grammatical or spelling errors. Do not rely on spell check or grammar check.

AFTER YOU APPLY

Always follow through

If you receive any scholarship, you will be direct to complete some follow-up forms. The Community Foundation typically asks for your contact information, parent/guardians names, college name and major, and college/student ID number. This information is very important because it is needed to process scholarship payments that are made directly to the college or university.

There are several other places to look for available scholarships, so don't let The Community Foundation be you one and only stop!

- Visit your school's GUIDANCE COUNSELOR. They are a great resource for scholarships, and are usually the main contact for local scholarship providers.
- Contact your COLLEGE/UNIVERSITY (or potential college/university) to see what scholarships they may have available. Sometimes there are scholarship available for certain majors, first generation college students, commuters, etc.
- Consider the GROUPS you're involved with or the church you attend—do they offer scholarships to their members? What about groups your parents are involved in? Or a parents' employers?
- Watch local newspapers, the chamber newsletter and other local publications for local organizations that offer scholarships.
- You can find other scholarships through QUESTA and ONLINE RESOURCES: Petersons.com, Scholarships.com. These websites provide other great tips in regards to college, such as degree types, financial aid preparation, college costs, and SAT/ACT prep.
